FOREWORD

In the spring of 1956 the Departmental Library made its first attempt at compiling a reading list on the subject of Canadian immigration. The interest shown encouraged us to prepare this more comprehensive bibliography. While by no means complete or polished, it will temporarily serve the needs of those who require immediate information. It is hoped that users will point out errors and omissions, as well as make suggestions for an improved arrangement. This information will help us in the compilation of the next edition.

Except for a few special references, the Debates of the House of Commons and of the Senate have not been included. Although most publications concerning ethnic groups in Canada also contain some information on the immigration of such groups, this material is not included here, but is to be found in the bibliographies compiled by the Canadian Citizenship Branch of this Department, entitled "Research on immigrant adjustment and ethnic groups; a bibliography of unpublished theses, 1920-1953"; "Research on immigrant adjustment and ethnic groups; a bibliography of published material, 1920-1953"; "Research on immigrant adjustment and ethnic groups; an annual bibliography". Here we are concerned with the general subject of immigration, i.e. policy, economic aspects, law, opinions and statistics.

An earlier compilation on the subject was "Bibliography of population and immigration, with special reference to Canada" prepared by Betty Belle Robinson, M. A., Economics Research Laboratory, McMaster University, Hamilton, Ontario, January 28th, 1949.
